2 Introduction

Compared to hardware, in which it is relatively easy to define an limited support concept based on the expected lifetime, software behaves totally different. In theory, when the environment does not change, software can still be running ten years after it has been installed. As new versions of the software are released regularly, it is important for customers to know what they can expect from Bosch Building Technologies when the software is purchased. This document describes how Bosch Building Technologies handles the life-cycle of the BVMS, BIS, AMS, and APE, and in which state a specific release can reside. Additionally this document lists the up-to-date situation for all of those software packages. Using the software assurance program, a system can be, continuously, maintained, upgraded and supported. More information on the software assurance program can be found on the Bosch Security System website.

✘ Based on Bosch internal regulation CDQ0214: "Products may only be placed on the market if they comply with the legal requirements and don't jeopardize safety and health of people." Additionally, based on Bosch internal regulation RB/GF182, the following principle is applied: "The application must function in such a way that, under product operating conditions, in the entire work/program map area the warranted characteristics are met."

Software versions that have reached the limited support phase are not maintained, may not meet the legal requirements related to "state of the art" products and Bosch cannot guarantee the warranted characteristics of these products are met. As a result, new systems based on software that has reached the limited support phase cannot be purchased. System extensions are unaffected and can be purchased until the software goes into the end of life phase.

2.1 Definitions

The table below contains the definitions of the availability of the software related services. The availability of these services depends on the lifecycle status of the product and the software maintenance agreement coverage of the system.

Purchasing	The software can be purchased.
Download	The software can be downloaded from the product catalogue or downloadstore .
Pre-sales support	Our pre-sales teams will support you in solving your design challenges based on the software.
Commissioning support	Our technical support teams will support you in commissioning the software.
After-sales support	Our technical support teams will support you in solving system and software failures.
Requesting hot fixes	You have the right to request hot-fixes for software failures. When a problem is fixed in a newer version of the software, you might be asked to upgrade your system. When a problem is reproducible in the latest version, we will fix the problem in the latest version and (optionally) release a hotfix to fix the problem in earlier versions. This includes data security patches.
Access to hot fixes	Indicates the availability of patches and/or hotfixes to fix a problem.
Software Maintenance Agreement (SMA)	The software maintenance agreement is a service that allows you, for example, to upgrade to the latest software version and contact our technical support teams.
Upgrade possibility	Product upgrades with Assurance PRO are possible and allow you to download and license later version of the product, including the latest release with new features, security and legal innovations.

i BVMS Minor versions

*BVMS Minor releases (ie. 12.3, 13.1, ...) are short-term support releases and Limited availability phase does not apply. After 12 months, those versions are immediately entering Limited support phase. See further details below.

i Access to download and hotfixes

Limited support software versions and related existing hotfixes are only available on request via our after sales organization (ASA).

3.2 BVMS Minor (short-term support) version concept

Starting with BVMS 12.3, new concept of Short-term support version was introduced. For Minor releases (like 12.3, 13.1, etc.) in future, Limited availability phase will be skipped. In practice, it means that those versions are fully supported (including expansions and requesting hotfixes) for 12 months. Afterwards, customer should consider upgrading to the latest available version.

Standard support (for BVMS Major releases as well as BIS and AMS releases):

3.3 Description

General availability	The base licenses of the software are available for purchasing and can be downloaded from the Bosch Security Systems product catalogue in the general availability phase. All available licenses and functional modules can be purchased and added to an existing system. The software is fully supported by the Bosch Security Systems technical support team if the system is covered by Assurance PRO and system relevant bugs can be fixed in case of reported and confirmed issues.
Limited availability	When software is in the limited availability phase the base packages are not available for purchasing any-more. As a result new systems cannot be purchased, but existing systems can be expanded. The software is fully supported by the Bosch Security Systems technical support team if the system is covered by Assurance PRO and system relevant bugs can be fixed in case of reported and confirmed issues. Note: This phase does not apply to BVMS Minor releases.
Limited support	When software has entered the limited support phase, patches and hot-fixes will not be created to solve problems. The software is supported by the Bosch Security Systems technical support team, but customers might be asked to upgrade to a newer BVMS version if this version is confirmed to solve the customer's problem.
End of life	When software has entered the end of life phase, it will not be supported by the Bosch Security Systems technical support team and the system cannot be extended by purchasing additional licenses or functional modules. Patches and hot fixes will not be issued when problems are encountered.
